WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1744.

Extract of a Private Letter from the Hague, dated October 14. 1744.

'THIS is ſtill the Seaſon of Conjecture here, in which the moſt intelligent Perſons ſcarce pretend to know any Thing with Certainty. Our laſt Letters from Poland aſſure us, that not only the great Army of the Crown, but that alſo of the great Duchy of Lithuania, is forming with the utmoſt Diligence; and that it is rumour'd an Edict will be ſpeedily publiſh'd there, for recalling ſuch of the Subjects of the Republick as are at preſent in the Service of any Foreign State. By a late Senatus Conſultum, the King has Power given him to provide for the Safety of the Commonwealth, as to him in his great Wiſdom ſhall ſeem proper; but it is thought he will make no Uſe of this Power, till the Sentiments of the Nation are known, from the Reſolutions taken in the enſuing Dyet at Grodno. In the mean time, ſome of the moſt conſiderable Perſons in the Republick are, by no means, ſatisfied with the Step this has been taken by the Senate; and it is even ſaid that the Primate, and three other Senators, have enter'd their Proteſt againſt it; ſo that, probably, this Affair may make a great deal of Noiſe. They write from Stockholm, that his Swediſh Majeſty, in Quality of Duke of Pomerania, has acceded to the Treaty of Union concluded at Franckfort; and this, in Conſequence of an unanimous Vote of the Senate. Which, however, is a Piece of News, to which, as yet, we cannot yield entire Credit, though we have ſome Intelligence from Germany that ſeems to explain and confirm it; for there are private Letters from Franckfort, which ſay, that a Marriage is concluded between a Prince of the Houſe of Brandenbourg, and the Princeſs Mary of Heſſe Caſſel. It is not eaſy to conceive, with what Difficulty the News of the Surrender of Prague obtained Credit here. Even ſo late as Wedneſday laſt, there were Wagers laid of Three to Two, that the Place was not in the Hands of the Pruſſians; but, at preſent, the Partizans of France are ſo alert, that they offer to lay large Sums, that Vienna is block'd up before the Cloſe of the Campaign; which ſhould it prove true, might not turn to their Advantage. It is very evident, that ſince the King of Pruſſia invaded Bohemia, their High Mightineſſes are become more ſanguine than ever; and we have the greateſt Reaſon in the World to believe, that the Troops which the Biſhop of Wurtzbourg and Bamberg, is aſſembling, are to be taken into the Pay of the States General, and make a Part of the approaching Augmentation. We learn from Bruſſels, that her moſt Serene Highneſs, the Archduchеſs, underwent an Operation, by which ſhe was delivered of a dead Princeſs; which inexpreſſible Pain ſhe bore with the greateſt Fortitude and Steadineſs of Mind; and at the Departure of the Poſt, there were great Hopes of her Recovery. The ſame Advices ſay, that the Seaſon for Action ſeems to be over in Flanders, the Marſhal Count de Saxe acting with the greateſt Caution; making it, at the ſame time, no Secret, that he has expreſs Orders from his Maſter, to avoid, as much as poſſible, coming to a Battle; and we expect to hear, in a few Days, that he has put the beſt Part of his Army into Winter Quarters.'

Genoa, September 26. They write from Rome, that Prince Lobkowitz had received poſitive Orders from Vienna to retire from Nemi into Lombardy; but as he providing for the Security of his Invalids retarded the Execution of thoſe Orders, he has ſent to this Republick to demand Leave to land at Porto Spetia, which was immediately granted. This Republick continues its Military Preparations with the utmoſt Vigour, and every Night ſends away Detachments of 60 to 100 Men to Oneglia, from whence they are marched to Final; they are likewiſe preparing to caſt 40 Pieces of Braſs Cannon, 24 Pounders, which are to be ready by the Month of January next. The Doge and Senate have nominated a Magiſtracy, conſiſting of ſome particular Gentlemen, who have Power given them to tranſact the Publick Affairs at this Juncture, without giving the Doge and Senate, or the ſmall Council, any particular Account of their Proceedings. Various are the Reports what Part the Republick's Troops are to act; ſome ſay they are to aſſiſt Don Philip with 12 to 14,000 Men as Auxiliaries, and to join him as ſoon as his Army ſhall become Maſters of Coni, and ſhall have gained a free Paſſage into Lombardy; others, that they will form a Camp about Final, to cover that Marquiſate from any Attack that might be formed againſt it. It is aſſured, that the Republick has ſent into Switzerland to raiſe 6000 Men; they are daily draughting Troops from Corſica, and have alſo agreed with a General to command their Forces, who is daily expected from Franckfort. Letters from Barcelona adviſe, that they were preparing an Embarkation, which was to conſiſt of about 100 Sail of Veſſels; about 50 of which, were ready in that Port; and that the Spaniſh Fleet was to convoy them to Naples. Three Days ago arrived a Veſſel from Portmahon, the Maſter whereof reports, that in his Voyage, near the Iſland of Sardinia, he met with four Spaniſh Veſſels full of Troops, who chaſed him, but finding they could not come up with him, they ſtood away to the Southwards, he alſo ſays, that he believes they came from Majorca; from whence they write, that an Embargo has been laid on all Veſſels, and that an Embarkation is to be made of 800 to 1000 Men.

Laſt Thurſday Morning a Ship of 130 Tons, laden with Lead from Cheſter, was wreck'd on the Coaſt, in the County of Wexford, and two of the Men loſt; the Maſter ſays, he came out with 13 Ships more, under convoy of a Man of War. The Elements of ALGEBRA,

New and Easy Method; with their Use and Application to the Solution of a great Variety of Arithmetical and Geometrical Questions, by General and Universal Rules.

To which is prefix'd, An Introduction containing a succinct History of this Science.

By Mr. NATHANIEL HAMMOND, of the Bath.

Extract from the Account of this Book in the Works of the Learned.

'The World has long complained of the Want of a proper Introduction to Algebra. Some are so very concise, that they were contrived not to teach but introduce a Teacher; others again are larger, but wrote with so little Connection to the Understandings of such as are altogether unacquainted with the Science, that they are of very little Use to those who are most inclined to make use of them. Hence it comes to pass, that few find it practicable to make any Progress in Algebra without a Master, tho' certainly the Science in itself is far from surpassing a clear Head, and a moderable Understanding.

'The Design of this Treatise, which is of a reasonable Size, and which contains nothing which is not solid, and to the Purpose, is to assist such as are engaged in teaching Youth with a regular Method, and a large Stock of Examples, that their Scholars may find Employment in their Business, and to enable such as live in Country-Places, and must frequently want all other Tutors, except Books, to attain such a Skill in this Science, as may enable them to spend a Portion of their Time agreeably in the Cultivation of the better Parts, and in rendering a natural Method of Reasoning after Truth habitual.

'The Treatise begins with a copious Explication of the Fundamental Principles of the Art, and of the Notation and Method of Notation used therein. The Author then proceeds to the several Rules, explaining them carefully and copiously in all their various Cases; so that with a small Attention it is simply impossible for a Person, who designs to be Master of Algebra, to miss of his End.

'We never find this Writer advancing any thing out of its proper Place, or burthening the Mind of his Scholar with Rules, before they become necessary; He professes to have imitated the judicious Euclid in this Respect; and has done it with equal Art and Felicity. By this means he delivered the young Student in Algebra from that which is usually the most fatiguing Part of the Science, the Doctrine of Surds, in the Manner in which it is usually taught. By the same Means he leads his Reader to Equations; and, by shewing him the Profit he will reap from this Science, encourages him to overcome all the Difficulties. But having thus laid a strong and rational Foundation, he moves more slowly through the rest of his Work, that whoever follows him, may be obliged to become Master of every Branch of the Art, so as to be a compleat Algebraist before he quits his Book, and not a Smatterer.

'Quadratic Equations, and the Art of managing Converging Series, the admirable Invention of the Incomparable Newton, are here so clearly explained, and their Processes so plainly set down, and so thoroughly explicated, as may be truly said, there are no where else such Helps to be met with. At the Close of the Book, we find an Abundance of Observations, necessary for enlightening the Student, as are willing to proceed still farther in analytic Difficulties, so that considering the Compass of this Work, and that it is very moderate, it is as complete as possibly can be wished: And he who is thoroughly versed in it, will find the Difficulties, when he proceeds to sublimer Studies, but small. Language is plain and natural, the Book is more Methodical than any other in Examples, and the Illustrations of them are so full and clear, that it is impossible to mistake the Meaning.——
